Abraham Lincoln

The Old State Capitol Historic Site
Where Lincoln debated slavery's future, freedom's meaning and America's destiny

When Abraham Lincoln and eight of his fellow state legislators (known as the Long Nine) were successful in their efforts to move the capital city from Vandalia to Springfield, a new statehouse was needed. On July 4, 1837, workers laid the cornerstone for this building. Designed by Springfield architect John Rague in Greek Revival style, the first rooms opened for use in 1839. When the Illinois House of Representatives convened in this room for the first time in December 1840, Abraham Lincoln took his seat for his fourth and final term as a legislator. Lincoln's desk and the portrait of Washington are the only two items present today which are original to the room.

As a lawyer, Lincoln argued many cases in this building before the Illinois Supreme Court. He launched his 1858 Senate campaign against Stephen A. Douglas in this room, warning the nation of the dangers of a 'house divided against itself.' And two years later, he prepared to assume the duties of President in the second floor governor's office and adjoining reception room.

Following his death, Lincoln's body was brought here to the Hall of Representatives in the spring of 1865 to lie in state as thousands of grief-stricken mourners streamed past the open coffin.

In 1876, state government offices moved to a new capitol building, several blocks away, and this building was extensively remodeled for use as the county courthouse.

Admirers of Abraham Lincoln launched an effort to return this noble building to its original appearance. Reconstruction began in 1966 when the building was completely dismantled, and the exterior stones were carefully removed, numbered and stored at the state fairgrounds until the walls could be meticulously rebuilt.

Following a three-year collaboration of historians and architects to re-create the Illinois Statehouse of Abraham Lincoln's time, the Old State Capitol Historic Site was rededicated November 15, 1969. Shortly thereafter, Illinois' Sixth Constitutional Convention met in this room, drafting our state's current constitution, the Constitution of 1970.

And on a cold winter day in 2007 -- just prior to Lincoln's birthday -- another proud Illinoisan, U.S. Senator Barack Obama, announced his own candidacy for President on the steps of this building, 'where Lincoln once called on a divided house to stand together,' he said, 'where common hopes and common dreams still live.'

The Abraham Lincoln Civic Engagement Award
The monetary awards presented to the Student Laureates are made possible through the generous support of the Malott Family Foundation and from the contributions to the Order of Lincoln ceremonies held earlier this year. Support from the Malott Family Foundation is in memory of Elizabeth Hubert Malott. Ibby Malott was an extraordinary woman who combined keen insight, limitless energy and elegance. Her leadership as a Regent of the Academy greatly influenced and furthered its mission. Her husband, Robert Malott, now retired as the Chief Executive Officer of a major Chicago based corporation, received the Order of Lincoln at the Academy’s 1995 convocation.

History of the Academy
The Lincoln Academy was established by proclamation of the Governor of Illinois in 1964, shortly after the New York World's Fair. During the World’s Fair a reception had been given for some of our state’s most celebrated sons and daughters which impressed the Governor and gave birth to a permanent program to recognize distinguished Illinoisans annually through the establishment of the Order of Lincoln. The first Convocation and Investiture of Laureates were held on Lincoln’s birthday, February 12, 1965, at the Chicago Historical Society, and convocations have been held in locations across the state every year since then. During the Lincoln Bicentennial in 2009, a special Bicentennial Edition of the Order of Lincoln was established, and thirty distinguished Lincoln scholars, collectors, artists, and curators from around the world were honored. The mission of the Lincoln Academy was expanded in 1975 by the Student Laureate Program, in which an outstanding senior from each of the four-year degree-granting colleges and universities in Illinois and one student representing our state’s community colleges are honored. Thus, the Lincoln Academy honors the Great Citizens of Today and celebrates the Great Citizens of Tomorrow -- knowing that now, as always, our state and nation need what Vachel Lindsay called ‘Lincoln-hearted’ men and women.

Organization of the Academy
The Lincoln Academy is a nonpartisan organization governed by a Board of Regents and a membership of General Trustees. The Governor of Illinois is the President of the Academy, and the Board of Regents elects a Chancellor who serves as the Academy’s Chief Executive Officer. The General Trustees are appointed by the Governor or elected by the Academy. Ten Rectors serve as ex officio trustees and assist in identifying potential nominees for the Order of Lincoln. The Academic Trustees are the chief executive officers of all four-year colleges and universities in Illinois and three members at large. At the discretion of the Regents, a former Governor may be elected a Regent for Life, and a former Member Regent, General Trustee, or Rector who has served in office for ten years or more may be elected an Emeritus Member, in recognition of distinguished service to the Academy.

Abraham Lincoln and the Illinois Executive Mansion
Abraham Lincoln had long advocated for an official residence for the state’s Chief Executive, and it was first opened to the public on January 10, 1856 -- the third oldest governor’s mansion in the nation. A magnificent elliptical stairway designed by its architect, John Van Osdel, was one of the building’s most famous features, and, originally, the building was crowned with an observatory that was fifteen feet above the roof.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln, who lived nearby, were frequent guests, particularly during the tenure of Governor William H. Bissell, who relied on Lincoln as a principal adviser.

Primarily because of the public safety concerns of an aging building, the mansion was renovated and expanded during Governor Ogilvie’s administration, adding a library -- paneled in Illinois walnut -- a ballroom and improved private quarters for the Governor and his family. The public rooms of the renovated building were furnished, in large part, by private contributions. The building includes priceless antiques and artifacts, including several portraits and busts of Lincoln.

In 1989, the annual Student Laureate luncheon at the Executive Mansion followed a controversial government decision to elevate the base of the Lincoln bust which stands in front of the Lincoln Tomb so that visitors could no longer rub Mr. Lincoln’s nose for good luck. (So many had done so over the years that officials feared that the nose would fall off.) Learning of the decision, Governor James R. Thompson promptly ordered that the bust be restored to its original height. A few days later, he explained his decision to the Student Laureates of the Lincoln Academy of Illinois.

“Reach out and touch Lincoln,” he told them, “and let Lincoln touch you.”
